

Historica Philosophicae

The history of knowledge through the world's great books

Historica Philosophicae is the story of the books that have shaped the development of philosophy from ancient times to the new millennium. Written by the keenest minds, these works have shaped human knowledge as we've attempted to understand exactly how we and the universe work.

The book is divided chronologically. It starts with the Instructions of Kagemni from 2500 BCE, then moves through the works of the Classical World, the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, taking the reader up to the present day. The story moves from ancient Greece to the Yuan Dynasty, and from the Islamic Golden Age to the British Empire, looking at how the philosophers of each era have helped to shape the world.

Dr Adam Ferner is a philosopher who is published widely in journals and magazines and has authored four books.

Chris Meyns is a philosopher and historian of science based in Amsterdam.

❖ Follow-up to the bestselling Scientifica Historica

❖ A showcase of over 150 books that have shaped the story of philosophy from the earliest times

❖ Fully illustrated by photographs of the most important and rarest works

Specification

235mm x 196mm • 272pp
4x4 • hb • 200 ills
ISBN: 978-0-7112-5309-4
October 2020
£25

